

Sanner's Carbine Classic February Match Report

2/29/2020

The February Carbine Classic match was certainly one for the record books! Plenty of new shooters came out to test their gear and plenty of seasoned shooters returned to shoot for the top.

This match tried to combine the best elements of both IDPA and USPSA style competition; challenging stages that allowed competitors to attack them as they saw fit as well of plenty dictated courses of fire to push the competitors out of their comfort zone. One example of this is the round counts were never two shots per target except on one stage, keeping competitors out of the double-tap rut.

Plenty of novice shooters came out for this match; from those who train regularly but not in a match environment, to those who just bought their first gun and wanted to push it, everyone had a good time. Some spectators mentioned that they were thinking about getting their first gun and came to see what they should get and what they could do once they had it. If learning occurred whether it be about your rifle, your belt, your mag pouches, or perhaps you found out that you need new accessories such as knee pads; this match was a success.
